All Nations are members of the World Organization right of States. They are represented by their respective Heads of State, Government, Ministers of Foreign Affairs, the Presidents of the Parliaments or delegates.

The Heads of State may propose to the President of the World Organization of the states personalities who will have to represent the Nations within the W.O.S. "World Organization of the States", with the specific functions of Deputy Secretary General, the President or Vice President of the Commission, these shall be subject exclusively to the General Council of the Presidency of the World Organization of the states, as well as, the Head of the Nation proponent. According to the criterion of the host State, the Representatives of States are protected by the rules of public international law and the Vienna Convention of April 18, 1961. The headquarters of the International Presidency of the World of States, as well as all the diplomatic missions operating in various countries, are considered Neutrals territories, agreeing that neutrality is a term of the public international law establishing the impartiality and the total of initiatives abstention by a State, when others are at war. Switzerland and India are the two witnesses of this concept.

Is widespread opinion that the International Legal Personality must be recognized by all International Unions organized. The concrete activities of such Unions turn externally, with the EU Member States.

Member of the joint holders of government power over certain territories part in creating, by agreement, to an international board that is based on their common will and on the international bond that results. The recognition has constitutive nature of the international legal personality of the State.

The recognition has declarative nature of the international legal personality. It follows that the
